THE PROPOSED WASHINGTON MONUMENT.—The following is an excerpt from the report of the committee on coinage of the U. S. House of Representatives on the bill to coin tokens from the proceeds of the sale of which it is said a monument to General Washington will be erected in this city.

"The matter is in the hands of the Washington Monument Association, of Alexandria, Va., an association composed of a number of leading business men of that city, which is chartered under the laws of Virginia, their object being to erect a memorial monument to Washington, as a citizen, in his home town on the centenary of his death. The plan proposed is to erect a monument upon a pedestal with a special design for each side thereof, showing Washington as he is known in that old historic city. Here in 1749 he helped survey the town (the sequel of which event was recently celebrated there). Here in 1774 he was a member of the Friendship Fire Company, to which company he presented a fire engine; the old company still keeps up its organization. Here in 1783 he was made worshipful master of Alexandria Lodge, No. 22, A. F. and A. M. This historic lodge, now known as Alexandria-Washington Lodge, still has many relics of Washington, and the chair occupied by him as master is still used for that purpose. Almost in view of Alexandria lies Mount Vernon, where Washington showed his appreciation of agriculture as the foremost farmer of his day. It was in Alexandria that Washington attended court, voted, visited, built his business office, transacted his large affairs and attended church, contributing largely toward the erection of old Christ Church, of which he was a vestryman. Here, too, he endowed a free school—among the first in this country—which still continues as a monument to his patriotism. Every memory that clings around the Father of his Country is associated with this old city. It is not an unusual sentiment that actuates these people in their desire to commemorate the memory of their greatest citizen as he was known among their fathers. While the city council and the people of Alexandria have responded liberally toward this fund and promise to do more, still the association, feeling unable to do justice to the occasion and the man, with the funds at their command, applied to Congress, as shown by the bill presented, to have struck at the mint a Washington memorial half dollar, and offered to defray all the expense of material and mintage, hoping to sell the same to coin collectors at a premium.

A MYSTERY.—Postoffice inspectors and others have identified the body of the man who was taken to Washington from the Virginia Midland Junction near this city on Saturday and who died Sunday at the Emergency Hospital as that of Charles Foulke, who was sent to the Albany penitentiary from that city in 1893 for safe-blowing. The second man, who gave his name as Howard, and says he is an iron worker from Cincinnati, is supposed by the inspectors to be James McCarthy, who went to Albany with Foulke. It is expected, the inspectors say, the two men belong to a safe-blowing gang that has been wrecking postoffices in Tennessee, North Carolina and Virginia. They were supposed to have been hurt by a train at the Midland crossing above this city. The detectives and postoffice inspectors, however, advance a theory that Foulke met his death while engaged with four companions, in attempting to wreck a train late Friday night near the Virginia Midland crossing a short distance from this city.

EUCHARIST PARTY.—Quite a large number of persons attended the progressive eucharist party at the Young Men's Sociality Lyceum Hall last night, and a very enjoyable evening was spent by all present. After the game a collection was served. The following won prizes: Ladies prizes—Box of bonbons, Mrs. Charles Baggett; sterling silver bowl, Miss Mary Pettit; ink stand, Miss Elsie Ayle; pair of slippers, Miss Constance Crump; bracelet, Miss Mamie Breen; paper knife, Miss May Dolman; cracker jar, Mrs. T. F. McCarthy; and box of bonbons, Miss Annie Igoe. Gentlemen's prizes: Writing case, Mr. Robert Wenzel; pair of gloves, Mr. Matthew J. Shuman; handsome pipe, Mr. John A. Lannoo; pair of braces, Mr. John A. Nugent; cravat, Mr. R. M. Latham; cravat, Mr. Theo. V. Ale, and pipe, Mr. Brooke Carter.

LENT BEGINS TODAY.—Today is Ash Wednesday, the beginning of the Lenten season. The period of penance and fasting was ushered in by solemn services in the liturgical churches, according to announcement made yesterday. During the next 40 days there will be a cessation of elaborate social functions, and fasting, churchgoing, with the milder forms of social amusements, will take the place of the elaborate gaiety of the social season. More rigorous fasting is demanded on Ash Wednesday of those who observe Lent than is demanded on any day in the penitential season, except during the solemn holidays of Holy Week.

DEATH OF "UNCLE CHARLES."—Charles Weston, colored, died yesterday about noon. His illness was of brief duration but pneumonia added to the weight of years was too much for the endurance of this old man, who was widely known and respected in this community. "Uncle Charles" (as he was usually affectionately called) was one of the old fashioned kind. Respectful and respected, always courteous and kindly. True to all his relations in life, honest and upright, he won and deserved a place in the hearts of all who knew him. "He that is faithful in a very little is faithful in much."

A Prominent Chicago Woman Speaks.—Prof. Rosa Tyler, of Chicago, Vice-President Illinois Woman's Alliance, in speaking of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, says: "I suffered with a severe cold this winter which threatened to run into pneumonia. I tried different remedies but seemed to grow worse and the medicine upset my stomach. A friend advised me to try Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and I found it was pleasant to take and it relieved me at once. I am now entirely recovered, saved a doctor's bill, time and suffering, and I will never be without this splendid medicine again." For sale by Richard Gibson, druggist.
